Android draw transparent rectangle with border. Transparent rectangle on iphone screen.

This example illustrates the effect of overlaying multiple transparent shapes on top of each other. We begin by drawing a solid background composed of four differently colored squares. Next, we set the globalAlpha property to 0.2 (20% opaque); this alpha level will apply to all of our transparent shapes. After that, we use a for loop to draw a series of circles with increasing radii. With each new circle, the opacity of the previous circles underneath is effectively increased. If we were to increase the step count (and thus draw more circles), the background would eventually disappear completely from the center of the image. const canvas = document.getElementById('canvas'); const ctx = canvas.getContext('2d'); ctx.fillStyle = '#FD0'; ctx.fillRect(0, 0, 75, 75); ctx.fillStyle = '#6C0'; ctx.fillRect(75, 0, 75, 75); ctx.fillStyle = '#09F'; ctx.fillRect(0, 75, 75, 75); ctx.fillStyle = '#FF3'; ctx.fillRect(75, 75, 75, 75); ctx.globalAlpha = 0.2; for (let i = 0; i < 7; i++) { ctx.beginPath(); ctx.arc(75, 75, 10 + i * 10, Math.PI * 2, true); ctx.fill(); } Normally stroking involves calculating stroke outline of the shape's path in current user coordinate system and filling that outline with the stroke paint color or gradient. The definition of NP.Fill opacity affects only pixels shapes or text on a layer without affecting the opacity of the composite group is then treated as a single image and blended with the rest of the image using the selected blending mode.
